

Our drawing represents the help that the immigrants need nowadays and that the European Union can provide. We think that many children have to move with their families from their country to have a better life and more opportunities. Many immigrants suffer from the consequences of war in their countries and move to a foreign country where they need medical aid as well as psychological support. The European Union should address this issue as soon as possible: too many lives are at stake.